SPECIMEN of the TYPE.

Darius having lain before Babylon a year and eight months, (a) at length, toward the end of the first year of his reign, he took it by a stratagem of Zopyrus, chief commanders. For he having cut off the ears, and mangled his body all over with stripes, in condition to the besieged, where feigning to have fallen by the cruel usage of Darius, he grew thereby to the confidence, as at length to be made the chief commander of their forces, which trust he made use of to deliver his master, which could scarce have been any other way. For the walls, by reason of their height and strength, it being furnished with provisions for a great many years, having also (b) large quantities of void ground, and a city, from the cultivation of which it might annually be supplied with much more, it could never have been forced a surrender; and therefore at length it must have been worn out Darius, and all his army, had it not been discovered into his hand by this stratagem of Zopyrus, for he deserv'dly rewarded him with the highest honors, could heap on him all his life after. As soon as Darius, master of the place, he took away (c) all their hands, and beat down (d) their walls from two hundred cubits, and was their former height) to fifty cubits; and of this only (e) Strabo, and other after-writers are to be believed, when they describe the walls of Babylon to be no more than fifty cubits high. And as to the inhabitants, after he given them, for a spoil to his Persians, who had but their servants, according to the prophecy of Zechariah (f) and impaled three thousand of the most guilty, and five of them in the revolt, he pardoned all the rest. At the beginning of the siege, he had made of their walls a thousand of that sex out of the other provinces of the country to supply them with wives without which the place could not have become depopulated for want of propagation. And here it is to be observed that the punishment of Babylon kept pace with the restoration of Judah and Jerusalem according to the prophecy of the prophet Jeremiah (g) 12, 13.) whereby he foretold, That when the seventy are as ignorant of CHRIST and salvation as the heathens; A person of the episcopal dignity in March 1754, was pleading in the highonourable house of LORDS for a reformation of the people; and said, something must be done, else we are undone. The oldest printer in London said to the STRANGER on this 21st instant of October, 1763. "That there is no religion left in the nation; which is a most lamentable thing;" There is too much ground to lay to; and it is high time to begin a work of reformation.

May his Majesty KING GEORGE THE THIRD be inspired with a zeal for promoting religion among his subjects: And may he be carried through the difficulties of reforming a people, who are so careless and unconcerned about the honour of God and the salvation of their souls, that many of them intirely neglect the means of salvation, and shew a contempt and disregard to the fourth commandment; which day is appointed for worshipping God and hearing his gospel, and for minding in a particular manner those things that relate to the salvation of their souls.

May GOD be gracious to our amiable and excellent Prince, KING GEORGE THE THIRD, and make him an HEZEKIAH to his people, and direct and counsel him in this important affair of the Reformation of these nations; and may GOD raise up instruments for the work, and choose such as will be either fit for the work, or whom he will make so; for he is able out of the mouths of babes and sucklings to perfect praise and ordain strength. Counsel is his and sound wisdom; he is understanding, and he has strength; for he is the mighty GOD, and able to execute all his counsels.

Help me, O LORD my GOD; O save me according to thy mercy: That they may know that this is thy hand; That thou LORD hast done it. The LORD is my strength and shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped through Jesus CHRIST the Mediator of the new covenant. O almighty and most merciful GOD, of thy bountiful goodness keep me, I beseech thee, from all things that may hurt me; that I being ready, both in body and soul, may cheerfully accomplish those things that thou wouldst have done by me, through Jesus CHRIST OUR LORD. Amen.

ACT of the TOWN COUNCIL, dated the 17th of June 1750, relative to the calling and settling of ministers, referred to in the first protest, is in these words.

Considering that the calling and settling of ministers in this city is a matter of the highest importance, and with this view that it is necessary to preserve and promote harmony among the members of council; do therefore resolve, that in their coming, when any motion is made to them touching the calling of a minister, they seeking shall be done upon their motion sooner than three weeks after it has entered upon record; and then, and no sooner, the council is to take into consideration, whether it is or is not necessary or expedient to proceed in supplying the vacancies of ministers in this city. And pursuant hereunto, the council do now resolve, that, upon the second Wednesday of July next, they will take into consideration the expediency or necessity for supplying the present vacancy of a minister to this city: and do hereby declare, that in case the council shall then deem it fit to delay proceeding in this matter, the same cannot again be brought before them, but upon a new motion to be made in any subsequent council, to be entered on record as above mentioned.

The motion for repealing this act was made and immediately carried into execution in the same terms, and the presentation followed directly upon it, as the act contains.

The Town-Session of PAISLEY,

Appellants from a Sentence of the Synod of Glasgow and Ayr, at Glasgow, October 15. 1760, disapproving a Plan for uniting the Offices of English Schoolmaster and Session-clerk in the Town of Paisley.

To be heard at the Bar of the Venerable Assembly met at Edinburgh in May 1761.

The APPELLANTS Case.

BY the Death of William Walkinshaw, late Schoolmaster and Session-clerk, in May last, both their Offices became vacant.

The new Churches within the Borough of Paisley are by no means upon the same Footing with other Churches in general through Scotland. They are not erected upon the same Terms in whole or in part, but upon a Deed of Mortification purely voluntary.

In the Decree of Erection, carried on at the Instance of the Presbytery, and the Procurator for the Church, as well as the Magistrates of Paisley, in consequence of their own Petition, there is an express Clause, empowering the Magistrates and Council, to "nominate and appoint Readers, Precentors, and Clerks, to the said Church or Churches, and Sessions thereof."

Ever since the Erection, by a good Understanding between Magistrates of this to themselves: But they are concerned, should be no Relaxation under their Management: a vast Increase of Inhabitants, no less than 7000 in two Years, and amounting, in all, to near 50000 persons, it is become impracticable to carry on Disputes with one Session only, but by such long Diets as are inappreciable, and inconsistent with many other Duties. This is not affirmed by the present Ministers only, on whom the Session and Presbytery do not seem to look with a favourable Eye; but is confirmed to the Synod by the last Incumbent, Mr Finlay, who always suppose, that this Division would be made; and whose Impartiality is not liable to the least Suspicion.

We do not incline to plead any Merit, but surely the two Estates made lately by the Town of Paisley, at so great Expence, have a Claim to the Care and Patronage of this Church, and are thankful to the Assembly, that though many Hindrances have been thrown in our Way, and

... For we are not able to imagine whose Interest can be hurt by it in the least; and cannot help being of Opinion, that as the Presbytery was unfriendly in not granting our Desire themselves, so when it was granted by the Synod, it was incompetent in them to reclaim, especially as no Part of their Conduct was found liable to Censure.

However, we are not contending for a Victory, and we ask not for Revenge; but hope, that, for these, and other Reasons, the Assembly at the Bar of the Assembly, they will be pleased to grant our Authority, in granting our Request; and ratify the Terms of Paisley, in terms of the Plan already given in by the Magistrates and Council, and ingrossed in the Records of the Presbytery.

I had lived to see—it is a plain and artful tale to have to tell—I had lived to see what lawgivers have always seemed to read, as the certain prognostic of public de-

I had observed almost the rise and origin, and surely very much of the progress of this evil: for it was neither so rapid to elude a distant view, nor so slow as to endanger one's setting, or not observing the relation its several parts bore to one another; and to trace the steps of this evil, may not be altogether useless to those, whoever they may be, who are the front of their operations, that their might be rendered as difficult as possible. This alone accounts for the haste they and the blunders they committed, in particular. The six months from the vacation not elapse till February next; so that there is full leisure to carry on their business in a most unexceptionable manner; which certainly would have done, had they not been conscious that the measure itself was of an offensive nature that it could not stand before a cool and deliberate examination; therefore judged it necessary to force it through at one meeting, being fully assured, that opportunity was given the deacons to the mind of their constituents, which, by a regular course of business, must have been given them, their weight would have been transferred to the opposite side. A remedy still competent: the united voice of the incorporated societies and the general session of this great city, ought to prevail, and I trust will prevail, for the review of an act of council, against which there lie so many plain objections; and there the deacons will have in their power to regain their lost honour, uttering the genuine sentiments of the people instead of echoing back the language of a furnishing dictator.

Illustro-Citizens,

It is well known, that within these few days our attention has been called to a subject that cannot fail to be considered as all as of the greatest consequence. The town-council, it seems, on Wednesday last, and signed a presentation to one to fill up the present vacancy in the town. As this was an unlooked-for event, the like of which was never heard of amongst us since the establishment of the Presbyterian government in this church at the Revolution, it is no wonder that it has raised the attention of those who wish well to the good of the city, and to the interests of religion in it.

Through the laudable zeal of many worthy persons who are in the office of Elders, the General Sessions of this city were convened by Dr Wishart on Friday last; and after mature deliberation on this weighty affair, they

LETTER

FROM

W. M. Gentleman, to J. C. Citizen of Glasgow, in Answer to his of the 20th of March, 1762.

DEAR SIR,

I RECEIVED yours of the 17th with several papers, for which I thank you. I have read them over, and do frankly own to you, they have occasioned very strange emotions in my breast. — My having got my education in Glasgow, and consequently residing so long in it; my having several relations in it, and many valuable friends, have interested me in your cause, which I think the cause of religion and liberty. — I did not imagine that there had been so much stir, but I find, though you write pretty fully, that you have not got the half told me, for I have seen, and conversed with several of your fellow citizens about the model, since I saw you; and have learned from them, a great many other particulars as to the management of the anti-modellers, in order to drive their point. Such as their slandering, and even saying to some of the members of session's faces, "That nothing can be gotten done for a set of tumultuous elders: — that this opposition to the council, is not out of regard to either religion, or the model, but out of private pick and resentment: — that the general session would as soon be patrons as the council: — that it is a shame to the session to be led by this one, or that one, as suits the person spoken to: — that every body of sense approves of the council's way, and consequently they are fools who do not, catching

A SENTENCE of the Very Reverend Synod of Murray, affirming a Sentence of the Presbytery of Farres.

To be heard at the Bar of the Venerable Assembly, met in May 1762.

THE Appellant, Mr. Dalrymple, has been many Years a Minister of this Church, and maintained an unblemished Character and entire Reputation. He has, in particular, been happy in the Discharge of his Duty to the Parish of Dallas, where his Conduct has been universally approved by Persons of all Ranks; and although he has had the Misfortune, when in the Decline of Life, to be unjustly accused, and to be most cruelly and irregularly prosecuted, and at length condemned, by his Brethren of the Presbytery, instigated by some who have conceived a most causeless Enmity against him; yet, besides the Satisfaction arising from a good Conscience, under his great Affliction, he has that of retaining the Affection and Esteem of his Parishioners, who, excepting a very few of the lowest Rank,

WE shall introduce these Replies, by observing, that we think we have great Reason to complain, that the original Answers returned by the Committee to our Reasons of Protest, which were publicly read in Council on Wednesday the 15th, were greatly applauded there, approved, and ordered to be printed; were industriously withdrawn, till we forced them again into the Minutes, by offering a Protest against their being cancelled; and that they contained, as we apprehend, several Misrepresentations in point of Fact.

The Lord Provost and the Committee had the Records of the City in their Possession from the Beginning; with all the Clerks to assist them; Misrepresentations therefore on their Part were not easily excusable; whereas we had no Opportunity of seeing the Records till after we had given in our Reasons of Protest; so that if we have fallen into any small Mistakes, it is the more pardonable. At any rate we must in justice be allowed an Opportunity of vindicating ourselves, and setting Facts in a true Light, especially as a solemn Re-

READER, this pamphlet, mighty well design'd,
 To clean thy body, and to clog thy mind:

Good THEODULUS fills the eyes and head,
 With such reading, as was never read:

He seems to prove, what never mortal doubted,
 And much he writes, about it, and about it;
 His readings, borrowings, is his just pretence,
 Of all he wants, is spirit, taste, and sense.

Behold him poring, in his sable gown,
 With respectful aspect, and funereal frown;
 A broad wrought belt, his body clothes round,
 A nap, and napkin, girds his head profound;
 He is tied with ink, much like a panther hide,
 He appears the linen of the learned scribe;
 He weeds, a careless dissolution show,
 He shouldst fight! his breeches rent below.

Around him next behold, with awful fear,
 Large bodies of divinity appear,
 Exceedingly heavy, and of amplest size
 Redeem'd from tapers, and defrauded pies, Transform'd from snuff-mens shops, they grace his shelf,
 In a good cause he's lavish of his self.

To conclude, let us all address our prayers to the throne of grace, that God may pour down his Spirit, to check the progress of irreligion, and revive his work, in these years, "when the love of many has waxed cold;" that the exalted Redeemer may "ride forth gloriously, conquering, and to conquer;" that his arrows may sharply pierce the hearts of men, and bring them in subjection unto himself; that the Almighty Spirit of grace may take hold of the hearts of men, and that this may appear, by their upright practice, and serious professions; particularly, that God may enable us to be influenced by faith, that we may never forsake religion, through the love of this profane world.

- " Now unto him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the that even holy persons, amongst you, should know and act, as the angels in heaven. — Are we often obliged, in judging of your characters, to admit, that the gold may be real, though mingled with much dross? and have not we a claim, upon you, for the same candour in judging of ours?

By all this we mean not to insinuate, that troubles of the church may not sometimes be found, in one or another corner amongst ourselves; nor that, if they are such, in the scripture views of the character, you may not wish and pray for their excision: we only intend to caution you against forming your judgments of ministers and elders, upon the opinions of others, especially if of a different communion from them; and on the prejudice of education; such sentiments you are not to receive, nor to be ready to give, or upon any other rule of judging, whatever, than the written, the unerring, word of God. If this standard was indelicately applied, to every individual, we should not, that in the first instance, former apprehensions of the stability of a fame stone, it is a thousand pities, but some little might be added on the popular sense, and thereby expected is the loss of your numbers might be so greatly, perhaps greatly, increased, but such numbers who spoke as never to be said, advised us, that many who are first shall be last, and the last first. — immense joy in the end, when other things are found to be "vanity and vexation of spirit." But without subjecting ourselves to unnecessary severities, or giving up accomplishments that are ornamental, if not also necessary in their own place, one may venture to affirm, that ministers of the gospel would do best to copy the example of their great master, who divided his time between acts of solemn devotion to God, and friendly and familiar intercourse with men, rather than in a fruitless pursuit of that satisfaction which, in many points, is best reserved for a state of higher perfection. I have before me a dying thoughts of a great saint, who acknowledged, that from his youth he began with things of greatest weight, and referred most of his other studies to that end, and to his own and other people's profit; and yet, seduced a little, he would seem, by that penetrating acuteness which he possessed in so high a degree, he saw occasion to pray God to forgive his spending those hours in reading things less profitable, for the pleasure of a mind that would needs know all, which should have been spent for the increase of holiness in himself and others. And if one so early is devoted to God, and so incessantly occupied in promoting the interests of his kingdom, is there occasion for this prayer and these reflections? I be blamed for cautioning my brethren from cultivating their understandings to the neglect of their hearts?

Frivacy.] An agreeable ridicule of the divine institutions, and a happy propensity for turning the most sacred duties into a tempt.

Convenience.] A plea for the commission of every crime, particularly a sufficient excuse for raising our own interest at the ruin of our friends.

Liberty.] A title for the use of insolence and clamour. Formerly the happiness of a Briton, and the bounty of God. There are a multitude of other words which remain plain, and which possibly may be given to our readers another opportunity, if this specimen should be favoured by their approbation. At present, if the public should wish to see why Religion, Honesty, and Goodness, have not been introduced in this vocabulary, we must inform them, that there are so little understood by the generality of the great, that it is a seldom or never heard of in polite conversation.

ors of the Hospital. But as a process of nature must be very disagreeable it ought to be depended upon; on which account the Hospital, one of the most early, the most magnificent, and most beneficial foundations for the reformation, being compared with an edifice of yet greater eclat, the city of Edinburgh, is come to be gradually neglected, and at last in ruin; an event which, as administrators, cannot think of without the utmost concern, and would wish to prevent by keeping the pecuniary interests of these two societies altogether separate.

For all the above reasons we conceive, that the granting the feu of the lands of the Hospital to the Town-council, on the 14th of December 1759, was not only unnecessary and detrimental to the interest and revenue of the Hospital, but may justly be considered as manifest lesion.

TO
The PETITION of Dr William Leechman, Principal, and the other members of the University of Glasgow;

A N D
COUNTER-PETITION for the Respondent.

THE respondent has for many years served the cure in one of the most extensive and populous parishes in Scotland. The rent of it exceeds L. 3000 Sterling, and it contains about four thousand examinable persons; and yet, notwithstanding the weight of the charge, the sum paid has been by far the smallest in the country. It was no more than eight chalders of victual; not paid in grain, but at a conversion which brought it far below the real value the grain would yield communibus annis. This obliged him, after trying all amicable measures with the University of Glasgow, who are possessed of the tithes of the parish, to apply to your Lordships for relief, and upon the 27th of July last, the following interlocutor was pronounced.

The Lords having added the libel, with the writs produced, July 27. 1763.

"Banks of circulation upon private credit (such are banks of every use of great use in the infancy of industry. In countries where the facility of money is the greatest obstruction it meets with and when the uses of money increase, if it be not made to suggest more precautions, alienation will cease to go on, and payments will be supported industry, by continuing its produce, money must be provided for every one, in proportion to the value of his property. This operates the principle of banks upon private credit."

"A circulating value (money) must constantly bear a proportion to the value of the property. Circumstances will determine what proportion of coin and what proportion of paper will be necessary for carrying it on. The circumstances, under banks of circulation upon mortgages, and paper so much, that little coin is required."

"It has been observed in a preceding note, that the bank of England, in 1706, discounted and circulated exchange bills and tallies in this service, the bank restored the credit of that government, although it had been depreciated, for want of being paid for it, to 30 and 40 per cent. below par. "This operation," say Sir Robert Smeaton, "was quite similar to banks of circulation upon mortgages, the bank of England was here employed in converting into money exchange bills, forced upon the hands of government, and more particularly, upon the property of individuals, upon the security of mortgages, and upon mortgages, been established in England, at this time, all those who had property would have their property from them, and would have been enabled thereby to pay taxes, and carry on their industry, without diminishing their intention. The exchange would then have had no occasion to be discredited bills and tallies for making up deficiencies; because it would have been productive, and the face would have been retained in favour of the bank."

the Deacons of Craft are chosen in the following Manner: Each Corporation of the Trades, being fourteen in Number, meet by themselves, and choole a Leet of six for the Office of Deacon, which Leet the Deacon of each Corporation presents to the Magistrates and Council, who strike out three at pleasure, out of each Leet or List, and out of the remaining three, each Corporation choole their Deacon for the ensuing Year.

It has been found, by Experience, that this Power given to the Magistrates and Town-council, of striking out three out of the Leets, has been highly inexpedient, and destructive of that Balance of Power, which ought to subsist between the Trades and the other constituent Members in the Governement of the City, taking from the Trades that Power and Influence

As to the Objection of the Exercise of their Ministry

With upon a Rehearsal of their Principles? ...
I add now, Sir, a Word upon the two Motives, wherewith you ... your Error, and bring up your Reason, and I have done. God is ... of Church, for, but of Power. How could you ... without reaching, if ever you read any ecclesiastical History, that the ... dreadful Confusions that have been in the Church (and dreadful ... have been) were owing to a dominion; tyrannical, ...
Church Rulers, which, after all the Checks it met with from Christ ... in his own Discipline, seldom ever fails, when it gets into Power, of ... order? without reflecting that there can be no Peace without ... judgment, and Toleration of different Opinions? that the driving of ... statements has wrought and must work unavailing Confusion in this ...
particularity? and that the forcing of private Confessions into a ...
Consistency with the public Conscience has always proven, and will prove ... to prove the most unpeppable of all Measures?

As for the Motto of this Church which you conclude, Ne interea ...
Amendetur, I would have you remember, that like the three Children ...
Third Ch. of David, the Church if sometimes cast into a Furnace ... printed, Impetens upon Conscience, for not complying with the Regimen ... of public Willom, she can put thro' the Fire without being burnt, ... those who know her into it may be scorched with the Flames of their ...
Mistakes.

A Sailor, and Prisoner in Newgate,

Who was tried at the Old Bailey in July 1763, and received sentence of Death for attempting, at the instigation of another Sailor, to receive Thirty-five Shillings of Prize-money due to a third Sailor.

Containing an Account of his being Convicted of Sin and Converted in the Cells of Newgate, and of his exemplary Behaviour, praying night and day, during his present confinement.

Humbly dedicated to the Right Honourable the EARL OF MIDDLESEX, who obtained a Reprieve for him from His MAJESTY, on a true representation of his case made to his Lordship by a STRANGER, who, since August 24, has visited this hopeful Youth daily in Newgate, and instructed him from time to time in the Principles of the CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

With an earnest and affectionate Address to all Magistrates, particularly the Judges of ENGLAND, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs of LONDON, to exert their power and influence for suppressing Idleness and Vice, and encouraging Industry and true Piety: To which is added an earnest Exhortation with Book-fellers, Printers, and others, on their profanation of the Lord's-DAY.

books; it not to know, that vicious clergymen are the great promoters of indelicacy and profanity. Both infidels and profligates often, without scruple, confessed, that what first led them to or confirmed them in the contempt of religion, was the conduct of the clergy of their acquaintance. The generality of mankind have they upon this subject, which often goes beyond due bounds. They expect a degree of sanctity, and an unblemished behaviour, in clergy which is above the common rate of humanity; and are apt to be offended at such things as are mere trifles in themselves, and inseparable from those who are no more than men. If this is the case, how far be the influence of the Heathenish doctrines, neglect of duty, offensive example of such ministers as, I have made it evident possibly upon the new scheme, find a way into this City?

Consider, I beseech you, my Lord, what it is to have an hand in the ruin and everlasting misery of so many souls. If ministers must give an account of the souls committed to their charge, there no account to be given by those, who, for some paucity of pious benefit, have committed the poor, harmless sheep, to the care of a wolf in sheep's cloathing? Believe it, the thing is real, and not imaginary; though no person is either sinful or miserable but by his consent; yet the eternal destruction of many may justly be ascribed to their parents, or tutors, or rulers, for placing them in circumstances dangerous and enflaming. What impression will it make your Lordship in the other world, to which you must shortly return, if it shall permit the knowledge of such facts, to find many of us by persons coming, from time to time, to take up their abode in a place of torment, and cursing the destructive system which you have exposed to us as a hoax, or to think how many may be snatched up by self-murder, fell'd down by midnight delirium, or rotten by debauchery, in the midst of their days; who are taught, or tempted, to set religion at defiance, by the conduct of teachers.

These things I submit to your serious consideration; and I am, my Lord, ever, your most obedient servant, My Lord, &c.

and an infinitely small tangent, touching each other, and also another circle A, in the same point C; according to Sir Isaac, the ultimate ratio of the infinitely small arc of the circle B, and of the infinitely small tangent, are the ratio of equality; and the arc and tangent may be used for each other; of course, the infinitely small arc of the circle B, will become a right line; and we will have two different right lines, both touching the same circle A, in one and the same point C; and we will also have a rectilinear angle, less than the angle of contact formed by the tangent with the periphery of the circle. But both these are impossible, and therefore it must be impossible that the ratio of the tangent and of the arc of the circle B, let them be diminished in what manner you please, can ever become the ratio of equality.

T H E corollary is obvious, that therefore in no kind of reasoning, The chord, arc, and tangent, can ever be used indifferently for each other; right lines and circular lines are lines different in kind, which have different properties; and diminish them at pleasure, even to a mathematical point, yet each of them in that state of diminution retains their specific properties, unaltered and unchanged; they cannot therefore be used indifferently, and all reasoning, which is founded upon using either the chord or tangent for the arc, or vice versa, the arc for the chord or tangent, must be fallacious and illusory.

" addressed to pleasure. So that the second venture
 " of our Colonists was for the luxuria of social life ;
 " Among which the commodity called FREE-THINK-" ING was carefully consigned to them, as that which " gave a relish and seasoning to all the rest.—Thus
 " it came to pass, that the VERY PEOPLE, whose " fathers were driven for conscience-sake into the " waste and howling wilderness, is now AS 'READY TO " LAUGH AT THAT BIBLE, the most precious reli-
 " of their ruined fortunes, as at their ruffs and collar-
 " hands". Surely, his Lordship would not have said this, had it not been told him by some, professing an acquaintance with the posterity of those, who were driven into this wilderness. But be they who they may, " the truth was not in them"—They could not more basely or falsely have spoken evil of them.

I shall only add, the reproachful light in which the Colonies are placed, more especially in the two last Society sermons, may possibly tend to move the compassion of serious good people at home, and enlarge the exercise of their pious charity towards us ; but the growth of the Church here, the great thing in view, will rather suffer than gain by it. Were these, and a few more sermons breathing the same Spirit, to be reprinted and dispersed among the Colonists, it would, I am persuaded, diffuse the Church much more, than the mission of as many Bishops as could be wished, would serve it.

Your's as above, church, even when they obtained it no where else. We have taken this opportunity to declare ourselves on this head, because our minister was not allowed any exculpatory witness, although he offered as many as the presbytery pleaded to demand. We also told them again and again, that he had no opinion on the head but what is contained in the Confession of Faith and Catechisms.—The Court of Inquisition with a witness!

We conclude, beseeching all our brethren in the Society to consider their ways. Lamentable it is, that we have been so long clamouring about the defections of others, while we have been so defective ourselves. Our teachers have taught us to be here, that we are the only holy people, the Lord's remnant, while, alas! many of us, for ignorance and wickedness, are in a way to be proscribed to the Christian name. Would to God they had been as we are, that we are on a level with the rest of mankind, that we had sinned and come short of the glory of God; and that if we were saved, it must be by the same method that all others are saved, by grace reigning through righteousness in Jesus Christ our Lord! The infidelity of acts of Parliament, burges-oaths, human covenants and testimonies, they had studied to bring us to our Bible, and to glory in nothing, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ! Let us then lay aside vain jangling, and make a bold stand for our Christian rights and privileges, opposing all injuries which are trod upon Christ's headship and prerogative; if we would be found faithful to our Master at the great day of accounts. Let us all pray daily, that God may revive decaying religion; that he may flourish in the hearts and lives of its professors; that God may carry on the covenanted reformation, that is, the reformation, that has sworn or covenanted to carry on, viz. the increase of the number of Christ's seed.—I have made a covenant with myself, I have sworn to David my servant. Thy seed will I increase; they shall fear thee as long as the sun and stars endure. Pray that that covenant may be established with us and many others. This is my covenant with them, saith the Lord, my spirit which is within thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, &c.—Pray that God may overturn all idols, idol-worship, and human inventions in religion; and that Christ's kingdom may come in its light, peace, purity and power, in all things God may be glorified, and his church may be established. VII. The True Gospel of Jesus Christ asserted. Wherein is shewn what is, and what is not that gospel; what was the great good, and it was intended to serve; how it is excellently suited to answer that purpose; and how, or by what means, that end in a great measure been frustrated. Humbly offered to public consideration, and in particular to all those who esteem themselves, or are esteemed by others, to be ministers of Jesus Christ, and preachers of the gospel; and more especially to all that who have obtained the reputation of being the great defences of Christianity. Acts xvii. 6. They drew Scares, and certain heathen, unto the rulers of the city, saying, These that have turned the world upside down, are come hither also. To which is added A short dissertation on Providence. The second Edit. Price 2s.

VIII. The True Gospel of Jesus Christ vindicated. And sheweth the vindication of the author's short dissertation on Providence. Price 1s.

IX. A discourse on Miracles, considered as evidences to prove the divine original of a revelation. Wherein is shewn, the kind and degree of evidence arises from them, and in which various reasonings on those questions that relate to the subject are fairly represented. To which is added, an appendix, containing an enquiry into this question, viz. whether the doctrines of a future state of existence to men, and a future retribution, were plainly and clearly taught by Moses and the Prophets? Humbly offered to the consideration of the Rev. Dr. Warburton, and all others that particularly interest themselves in this question. Price 1s. 6d.

X. An Enquiry concerning redemption. Wherein the Christian redemption is particularly considered. To which is prefixed a Preface; wherein is shewn, That if Christianity be not founded on argument, but on those divine impressions that are made on mens minds concerning it, (as a late ingenious Author has attempted to prove,) then it is most uncertain and precarious, and cannot be reduced to any standard. And in which is also shewn, that Christ's kingdom has been so far from being supported, as established by the interposition of civil power, that on the contrary it has rather been annihilated thereby.

XI. The ground and foundation of morality considered. Wherein is shewn, that disinterested benevolence is a proper and a worthy principle of action to intelligent beings. And in which is also shewn, what some of those absurd and bad consequences are, which naturally and obviously follow the doctrine of absolute selfishness; or, that self-good is the sole and universal principle of action in nature: Occasioned by the Rev. Mr. Rortersford's essay on morality. To which is added, the first section of the author's farewell to his readers; namely, the introduction. Wherein those points, viz. of divine impressions on mens minds, of special grace, of the virtue and merit of faith, and of St. Thomas's unbelief, are particularly considered.

XII. A Collection of Tracts in one Volume in Quarto formerly published, and several Tracts printed since, which now make two Volumes in Octavo; contain the Whole of Mr. Chubb's Writings; of the latter may be had the Whole, or any particular Tract, if apply'd for in Time.

able, restore the presbytery of Dunfermline, and the innocent parishes in the bounds thereof, who have a right to discharge all the parts of their office, according to Christ's appointment, to the same situation with other parishes and other parishes in this church, which are not, and not to be, even for the fault of individuals, numbered, that there may not be any longer the notorious, disgraceful appearance, as if there was one tribe, in this church, cut off from Israel / his days. If this cannot be obtained, as summar a way as the occasion was given for it, may we hope, at least, that they will transmit the question to parliament and take the general sense of the church upon an affair so important and interesting to us all, before a precedent be established that may have so universal, and, in our apprehension, so serious an influence. If both the one and the other be refused, surely cannot be thought: immodest to desire that the next assembly would have the condescendance to what, we are sure, cannot contrive worse than our weakness, to bestow a sanction upon us and show us how such a conduct can be reconciled with our constitution.

REASONS OF PROTEST,

BY

THREE ELDERS in the ASSOCIATE CONGREGATION of EDINBURGH,

AGAINST

An ACT of the ASSOCIATE SYNOD, at Edinburgh, April 9. 1767, exalting the Rev. Mr ADAM GIB to a SUPREMACY over the said Synod, and Judicatories subordinate thereto; and debarring the said three Elders, and a Multitude of other Persons, Members of the said Congregation, from Communion with the Church, unless they approve of that Act.

*Ye shall not respect persons in judgment, but ye shall hear the small as well as the great. Deut. i. 17.

sometimes false and deceitful; and because his feelings admit of counter-feelings; he cannot give specific trust. And thus the Being and attributes of GOD, the foundation of all religion, instead of being supported by reason, is by the author established on his fanciful, false and inconsistent feelings. The author says (parag. 21.) That in man are accumulated all the prerogatives both of a necessary and free agent. In return, (if we may judge of him according to his writings) in him are accumulated all the vanity, weakness and wickedness of an enthusiast and an Atheist.

thy furniture, thy house, thy land, are present stained with blood. Surely enough; accumulate no more guilt: No more the blood of the innocent! Do not hire another to shed blood! Do not pay for doing it! Whether thou art a Christian or no, shew thyself a man; be not a savage than a lion or a bear.

Perhaps thou wilt say, "I do not buy negroes: I only use those left me by my father." But is it enough to satisfy your own conscience! Had your father, having had any man living, a right to use another as a slave? It cannot be, even setting revelation aside. It cannot be, that either you or contract, can give any man, such a property in another as he has in his sheep or oxen: Much less is it possible, that a child of man, should ever be born a slave. Liberty is the right of every human creature, as soon as he breathes the vital air. And no human law can deprive him of that right, which he derives from the law of nature. If therefore you have any regard to justice, (to say nothing of mercy, nor the revealed law of God,) render unto him his due. Give liberty to whom liberty is due, that is to every child of man, to every partaker of human nature. Let none force you but by his own act and deed, by his voluntary choice. Away with whips, chains and all compulsion. Be gentle towards men. And see that you invariably do unto every one, as you would he should do unto you.

EXTRACT FROM AN ADDRESS
IN THE
REGINA GAZETTE,
OF MARCH 19, 1767.

By a respectable Member of the Community.

I FIND,

ADMIT me, in your Paper, to address the Members of our Assembly, on two points, in which public interest is very nearly concerned. The abolition of slavery and retrieval of specie in the colonies, are the subjects on which I would bespeak your attention.

And serious reflections upon the nature and consequences of slavery have convinced me, that it is a violation of justice and religion; that it is dangerous to the safety of the community in which it prevails; that it is destructive to the growth of arts and sciences; that it produces a numerous and very fatal train of evils, both in the slave, and in his master. I shall prove these assertions, shall be the purpose of the ensuing essay.

Slavery then is a violation of justice, will plainly appear, when we consider what justice is. It is simply and fully defined, as by Justinian, Constantinus et perpetua legis, jus suum cuique tribuendi; a constant endeavour every man his right. It is as freedom is unquestionably the birth-right of mankind, Africans as well as Europeans, to keep the world in a state of slavery, is a constant violation of justice, and therefore of justice.

by Kirk-sessions, Presbyteries, and Synods, shall give place to the government of the church by a single person, or not?

May it therefore please this Very Rev. Synod, to take this whole affair under their most serious consideration, and take effectual measures, for reclaiming our Rev. minister from the schismatical and tyrannical courses he has been left for some time to pursue, as above set forth; and grant us such other relief as the Rev. Synod shall in their great wisdom judge proper.

Edinburgh, April 7. 1767. (Signed)

T — K
A — W R
R — M

P O S T S C R I P T.

We have already observed, above, p. 71. that the Synod, in April 1767, dismissed an appeal, by five of our brethren of Session, against a sentence of the Presbytery, rebuking them for petitioning Mr Gib to consent to a burial of all differences. These elders gave in to the committee of bills, at the late meeting of Synod, Sept. 2. 1767, a representation, setting forth the wrong done to them by that dismission, as proceeding upon insufficient grounds; taking notice of the injustice done to us, and the members of the congregation, by the decision of April 9.; praying the Synod to reconsider the case, reverse their sentence, and grant them other relief. But the committee refused to transmit the paper.

At the same meeting, Sept. 3. a representation, subscribed by upwards of a hundred men of the congregation, was given in to the committee, complaining of the oppressive conduct of Mr Gib, and of the Synod's making the act relating to us a term of communion to them, though their cause never came before the Synod, and, as a Synod, they had no knowledge of it; and craving to have it reversed, and their grievances redressed. This paper was also refused to be transmitted, and Mr Gib allowed to pocket it up; for he carefully attended all the meetings of this committee, though no member of it, that he might influence their proceedings. The poor people complained to the Synod, but got no redress, unless an attempt made by Mr Gib and his friends, to suppose upon their understandings, as mentioned above, p. 89. can merit that appellation.

Thus have acts passed by the Associate Synod in favour of their supreme head, become, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, unalterable, though repugnant to scripture, equity, and common sense. A protest indeed against any act or decision, by a member of court, such as Mr Gib's privilege, suspends its effect, and leaves him in the situation he was in before it was passed; but third parties, even when their cause does not come before the Synod, and the court knows nothing of it, must be condemned and excommunicated; and when they remonstrate against such absurd and iniquitous conduct, they are refused a hearing. If this behaviour of the Synod does not amount to a respecting of persons in judgment and be not destructive of the natural rights of mankind, is left to the public to judge.

...tating measures. If presentations, for example, had been
 ...table a commodity, as our managers are driving us them; would not our eyes have been long ago open to advertisements which would have been in the newspapers such a living to be disposed of, that was vacant, or not ly soon to be so? And had the destruction of our disor-as entire and effectual, as the majority in our Assembly vidently, aiming at; would not the fight of a drunken ster staggering in our streets, be more frequent than it And might not some of them, by this time, have been their whores or concubines, with as little reserve as many gentlemen are now doing?

But whatever be the success of our endeavours, (which be better than our hopes), it is not events, or the progress them, by which our conduct is to be altogether regulated our lot be cast in evil times or evil places, our business our own garments clean, to see that the progress of cor-be not owing to any fault of ourselves, either of commission even of omission. The slothful servant is, by our Master regarded as a wicked servant, and will be punished accordingly.
 Let us do our duty, and leave events to God. It was speech of a man who, upon the whole, had but an im-luxury and pleasure, that must tend, in the issue, to such disasters?

Would it not be more honourable, more Christian, more humane, more productive of satisfaction to ourselves, and advantage to society, if that influence which must be exerted, and that money which must be laid out towards erecting Theatres, were transferred to the support of a most useful situation, (The Charity Work-house, in the city), so beneficial to many, which just now groans under a load of debt, want of necessaries; and from which, if not speedily relieved, must sink under the burden?

Will those gentlemen who most vigorously promote Play-houses, be equally forward to support this charity? will not the one scheme retard and hurt the other?

In fine, is it not the duty—will it not be the honour of all who wish well to the religion, the learning, and commerce of Edinburgh,—and of all who are concerned in the character of a present and rising generation,—to join in hand for the preventing a scheme so fatal to the interests of this City, and so alarming in its effects on the moral habits of the Citizens?

By TITUS POMONIUS ATTICUS, Junior.

Happy that King who is Great by Justice; and that People who are Free by Obedience.
For the People is the Politic Wife of the Prince; that may be better managed by Wisdom, than ruled by Force.
As often as Rulers endeavour to attain just Ends by just Means, they are sure of a quiet and easy Government; and as sure of Convulsions where the Nature of Things is violated, and their Order over-ruled.

PAGAN'S Reflections and Maxims.
Shall Men have Authority from the Fountain of Good to do Evil?—While you make the Power of rendering Men happy the Measure of your Actions, how easily will that Power be extended?—The Glance of your Eye will give Gladness, and your very Sentence have a Force of Bounty.
—The Soul is the Essence of the Man; and you cannot have the True Man against his Inclinations.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH.
Nothing is more uneasy to good Men, than not to have the Liberty of speaking freely.

The fairest Portraiture of Men is their own Actions.

tion, tending to subject princes, as well as their people, to a spiritual tyranny, from which the first reformers had waded through seas of blood to rescue them; and that the champions of our church afterwards, as you are pleased in contempt to call them, who labored to secure the liberty they had attained, have been treated by you with much undeserved reproach; your preparation must reasonably have a tendency, contrary to what you expected, not much in favor of a scheme calculated to introduce a general state of confusion, which followed the attempts you have been recommending. A desire of attending you closely, as it hath hitherto led, so it may hereafter lead me, in the examination of your book, to be less methodical than I could wish, intermingling historical matters with doctrinal. The former indeed are in themselves of no great consequence to your professed principal point, viz. the lawfulness of requiring assent to articles of faith before admission to the ministry; yet you have thought it for the interest of your argument to weave them together in such a manner, with a view of prejudicing your readers all the way; that I cannot sufficiently guard against your artifices, without examining facts when I meet with them; you may therefore expect, as soon as my health and many avocations will give me leisure to examine the principles of your book, the respect of a second address, from one who wishes you knowledge of the truth and salvation in Christ Jesus.

for Salvation. But an unbaptized Child is left in the Kingdom of Darkness. In the Covenant with Abraham, this is the Privilege of the uncircumcised Man-Child whose Faith is not counted for Righteousness. Gen. xvii. 14. The uncircumcised Man-Child whose Faith is not counted for Righteousness, that Soul shall be cut off from the People: He hath broken my Covenant. I have shewn that the Covenant is for Substance still in Force; and therefore Threatning still stands pointed against such Children, whose Faith is neglected. I would therefore query of such Parents, whether they are willing their Children should be out-cast from Church and People of God? Whether they choose their Children should have no Portion in Gospel-Privileges, nor be Sharen in the Blessing Influences of God's holy Spirit? Where are the Blessings of a Parent!

5. To such as are received as Members of the visible Church, Let no one think himself secure of an Interest in the Favor of God, because he is a Member of the visible Church: But remember the Warning given. Matt. viii. 11, 12. And I send you, that many shall come from the East and West, and shall stand in the Kingdom of Heaven. BUT THE CHILDREN OF THE KINGDOM shall be cast out into outer Darkness: There shall be weeping and gnashing of Teeth. It seems to be the Case of some, they will make a Profession, and come into the Communion of the Church, and rest, as having done their Work: They esteem themselves, real Children of God, and Heirs of the Kingdom of Heaven; and think, others look upon them so too. But let such remember, that the visible Church was not erected, to make a visible Distinction between the renewed and the unrenewed: But to put Men kind under the best Advantages for working out their own Salvation. It is therefore what God, and the World expect of you, that you should give all Diligence, in the Improvement of the Privileges of the visible Church, to make your calling Election sure. This is what you have special Advantages, and are under very strong and sacred Obligations to do it: if you fail, it will be more tolerable, in the Day of Judgment, for Sodom and Gomorrah, than for you.

HAVING thus briefly offered my Sentiments, I must leave them to the Blessing of God: And may his good Spirit lead you all into the Knowledge and Love of Truth. AMEN.

importance of the principal subject of the foregoing sermons; viz. that sin shall be the occasion of the greatest good: That God's perfections shall be manifested in an unspeakably more bright and glorious manner and degree; his kingdom shall be more glorious; and there shall be immensely more holiness and happiness forever, than could have been, if sin had not been permitted: And the every instance of it is so far under God's direction, that it is over-ruled to answer some wise good end, which could not have been so well answered any other way. And the more convinced I am that this truth is suited to support and comfort all our true friends and servants of Christ: Nor can I conceive how there can be any ground of true support and consolation to them, who are displeas'd with this doctrine; and can't but desire their eyes may be opened to see that truth, which has been the support and joy of God's people in all ages; and in which great numbers, I trust, are now rejoicing on earth, and in heaven!

The Society in Scotland for propagating CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE,

In the year 1769.

THE design of erecting a Society in Scotland for propagating Christian knowledge, was first formed about the year 1700. A few private gentlemen, who at that time were in use to meet at Edinburgh for reformation of manners, gave it birth; and their pious purpose was, to spread the knowledge of Christianity through the highlands and islands of Scotland, at that time plunged in deep ignorance, error, and vice.

The manners of the inhabitants of those parts of the kingdom were then dissolute and wild. Many of them had early contracted violent prejudices against the reformation-fetters, and were embarked in an interest absolutely inconsistent with the safety and felicity of their country. Strongly attached to the court of St Germain, they acknowledged the pretender as their king, and waited only for a favourable opportunity to place him upon the throne of Britain. With regard to religion, they were bigotted Papists; acknowledged the Pope as their spiritual father, and were zealous in promoting every thing

Give me leave to assure you in the clost, that I am neither Arian, Socinian, Pelagian, nor Arminian, as far as I know what those hard words and terms of reproach mean. I differ from the Dr. in my sentiments of some doctrines of the Gospel, and passages of Scripture; and approach nearer to you. But however we differ, I doubt not but you will heartily join with me in offering up the following excellent Collect of our Church: " O Lord, who hast taught us, that all our doings without charity are nothing worth; send thy Holy Ghost, and pour into our Hearts that most excellent gift of charity, the very bond of peace and of all virtues, without which, whosoever liveth is counted dead before thee. Grant this for thine only Son Jesus Christ's sake. Amen. "
